I certify that

I certify that the violin described and illustrated herein is, in my opinion, an instrument of the school of Gaetano Pollaroli of Bologna, likely made in northern Italy in the late 20th century. It bears a facsimile Pollaroli label and exterior and interior brands.

It is a well-executed interpretation of the Pollaroli style.

Description

The back is made from a single piece of quarter-sawn maple with narrow, pronounced flames ascending from left to right; the sides and scroll of matching wood.

The top is made from two pieces of spruce with narrow grain at the centre, widening toward the edges.

The varnish is of a deep orange colour laid over a golden ground.

Measurements

Length of back: 355 mm Upper bouts: 169 mm

Middle bouts: — Lower bouts: 208 mm
